

Helping Others along the Path Study Questions

After Jesus rose from the grave, He left His followers with a simple command: “Go into all the world and make disciples”... The church should be known for this. If we are going to call ourselves followers of Jesus Christ, we should be making disciples.

But most Christians today are not known for making disciples. We have developed a culture where a minister ministers and the rest of us sit back and enjoy “church” from a comfortable distance. This is not what God intends for His church. Every Christian is called by God to minister. You are called to make disciples.

1. Think about the quote from Francis Chan. Why do you think our culture has shifted to one where paid staff do ministry, and many others sit back to “enjoy” church? Really think about your participation in discipleship... are you guilty of this? Do you need to adjust your approach to discipleship to correct an imbalance? How might your small group or you and. Your friends encourage one another and hold each other accountable to this?
2. Are you prepared to share at least a short version of the Gospel like the one shared during the sermon? Try to relate the Gospel in your own words.
3. You may be in a small group, but do you need to consider one of the other forms of discipleship? Maybe consider finding peer to peer discipleship relationships in your own group. Take a moment to discuss/consider this possibility.
